					Note: This course introduces students to the art, architecture, and visual and material cultures in Islamic contexts, from the 7th through the 19th centuries. The course will examine the aesthetic manifestations of Islam within the context of institution development, in particular the 'formative' negotiations of the Umayyad, Abbasid, Fatimid, Seljuk, and Mamluk periods between visual idioms and new spiritual and political programs. Cross-listed with Near Eastern Studies C121A section 1.

Note: Section 4 is an active learning section of Chem 1A combining lecture and discussion into 3 class periods per week. The goal of section 4 is to provide an opportunity for talented students to achieve excellence in a peer community through hard work, mutual support, and engagement with chemistry ideas as they apply to the life sciences. Admission into Section 4 is by instructor approval. To request admission, speak with a college adviser or send an email to chem1Asection4@gmail.com. Midterm exams are Monday, September 21, and Tuesdays, October 20 and November 17, 2015, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. nbsp;

Note: SATISFIES READING AND COMPOSITION REQUIREMENT; In this reading- and writing-intensive class, we will explore a set of literary works from the four traditions of the ancient Mediterranean world-Greek, Jewish, Roman, and Christian-that exerted the strongest influence on that later complex of cultural, intellectual, political, and religious traditions often described by the term "Western civilization." At the same time, we will be using this rich and interesting group of works as material on which to develop and practice higher-level reading and writing skills. Also: SAILOR, D

Note: "Etruscan Italy" - The Etruscans were major contributors to some of the greatest achievements of ancient Italy, namely, architecture, engineering, and the arts. A sophisticated and wealthy people living in central Italy between the 8th and 2nd centuries BCE, the Etruscans leave us much of their past through their material culture seen in their tombs, temples, habitation sites, and more. By using an interdisciplinary approach to examining the Etruscans (archaeology, history and art history), this course will trace Etruscan civilization from its origins in the Villanovan Iron Age to the 2nd century BCE when they became Romanized.

Note: "The Gods in Augustan Poetry" - Although the ancient philosophers had long dismissed the poets' depictions of the gods as inaccurate at best, or even blasphemous, Vergil and Ovid, the two major epic poets of the Augustan period, gave the gods an even more central role in their epics than Homer had done. The gods of the Aeneid are both vivid as characters and endowed with cosmic significance, while the gods of the Metamorphoses have all the flaws of humanity, combined with the power to turn their flaws into frightening threats to mankind.

Note: "Greco-Roman Magic" - Ideas about magic in the Greek and Roman worlds 750 BCE through 400 CE including witches, holy men, love spells, necromancy, spirits, and mystery religions. Magic in high literature (Homer, Ovid, Apuleius and Lucian) as well as practical evidence of curse tablets and the Greek Magical Papyri. Analysis of the relationship between magic, religion, and philosophy. Study of common threads connecting Greek & Roman magical practices and their cultural contexts. Open only to Classics majors. Intended majors or minors may request enrollment form the Classics Undergraduate Advisor, Cassandra Dunn (cassandraj@berkeley.edu).

Note: This course is intended for students who have taken both Greek 100 and Greek 101. It provides an introduction to Greek drama through Euripidean tragedy. The play studied in Fall 2015 will be Euripides' Hippolytus. In addition to close attention to the translation of the Greek text, the course will offer a general introduction to Greek tragedy and tragic language and meters as well as consideration of literary interpretations of the play. The Phaedra-plays of Seneca and Racine will be read in English. Additional texts illustrating contemporary Athenian society will be introduced as time permits.
15630	P 116	001 LEC	MWF 1-2P	105 DWINELLE	Greek Drama	4	TELO, M	12
Note: "Aristophanes' Acharnians" - In this class we will translate Aristophanes' Acharnians and analyze this play from different angles: linguistic, dramaturgical, aesthetic, political, and cultural-historical. Our meetings will aim to translate in class most of each week's readings. Besides translating the text, we will also discuss secondary readings, which will help students develop ideas for their term paper. Students will be asked to give two short presentations: one on a specific linguistic aspect of the text (a word or a particular grammatical construction) and one on their paper topic.

Note: "Empowering Education: A Global Perspective" - What kinds of educational experiences are "empowering" for students, teachers and communities? In this seminar we will consider the term "empowerment," which has become a leading buzzword in international development policy. What exactly is empowerment, and how might education trigger the empowerment process? To address these questions we will examine a variety of educational interventions from around the world.

Note: "Postcolonial Geographies" - The term 'postcolonial' is often used descriptively to refer to peoples, states, and societies that have been through a process of formal decolonization. In recent years the term has taken on far more critical meaning in the field of 'postcolonial studies' that focuses on how processes of colonialism/imperialism continue even after the formal dissolution of empire. Originally associated with literary criticism and cultural studies, postcolonial scholarship is increasingly being pushed to engage with questions of political economy, and with more grounded understandings of transnational power and inequality.

The seminar's goal is to explore, using history as a guide, possible directions that science may take in the decades ahead. We ask: what if anything is new about complexity science, and what kind of "big theory" of complex systems might emerge over the coming decades that could best utilize, and keep us from drowning in, big data? Students will identify 3-4 independent projects where data, either available on the UC system or collected by the students during the course, may (A) extend knowledge and understanding of disparate experiences of students in STEM fields and/or (B) identify strategies to advance inclusion, equity, and diversity in STEM departments at UC Berkeley. Clients include The Berkeley Institute for Data Science and the UCB Office of Equity and Inclusion. Supervised Independent Studies for Freshmen and Sop...	1-4: PF	RAY, I	NONE

Note: "Race, War, Culture" - This seminar investigates regimes of racial relationality that have been utilized and contested the concept of war. The course advances historical and theoretical approaches to what appear in the contemporary moment as new forms of racialization. It focuses on three overlapping lines of inquiry: Fanon's entanglement of anti-blackness, colonialism, and decolonization; Foucault's investigations of sovereignty and biopower; and Hall's Gramscian theorizations of race. Students will engage social, cultural, and political theory alongside critical culture work, and will produce a final seminar paper.&nbsp;

37266	P C25	001 LEC	MWF 9-10A 219 DWINELLE	Revolutionary Thinking: Marx, Nietzsche, Freud	4	FELDMAN, K S	16	CURRENTLY FULL
Note: This course explores the ways in which Marx, Nietzsche, and Freud--three of the most important thinkers in modern Western thought--can be read as responding to the Enlightenment and its notions of reason and progress. We will consider how each remakes a scientific understanding of truth, knowledge, and subjectivity, such that rationality, logic, and the powers of human cognition are shown to be distorted, limited, and subject to forces outside our individual control. All lectures and readings in English.

Note: The aim of the course is to help students develop proficiency in Middle high German language to enable them to read original texts written in German before 1400. The course necessarily emphasizes grammar, though the cultural context of the literary documents and of the production of texts during the Middle Ages will be discussed as well. Students will read selections from major works of the medieval period. Reading material in German. The course is open to graduate students. Also: Th 9-10A, 282 DWINELLE
37299	P 123	001 LEC	TuTh 1230-2P	5337 DWINELLE	From 1800 to the Present	3	TANG, C	NONE
Note: This course seeks to give students a basic sense of the historical development of German literature in the 19th and 20th centuries by reading a number of canonical texts. The theme this semester will be the narrative, dramatic, and lyrical representations of sexuality. Authors include Goethe, E.T.A. Hoffmann, Sacher-Masoch, Wedekind, Schnitzler, Thomas Mann, and Jelinek. Readings in German. Discussions in German or English.&nbsp;
37302	P 148	001 LEC	MWF 3-4P	258 DWINELLE	Topics in Narrative	3	BUCHHOLZ, P J	NONE
Note: "Family Stories". This course examines how family has been constructed and contested within narrative works from the nineteenth century to the present. Focusing on short prose, drama, and film, we will study texts that narrate the formation and transformation of family in its many valences: an emotional union, a politically defined institution, an economic unit, and a gender regime. We will consider how family stories from a range of cultural periods (romanticism, realism, modernism, the postwar era, and the present) communicate with critical theories of family from Engels and Freud onward. Readings and discussion in German.&nbsp;

Note: Europe's 20th century was marked by two of the largest and bloodiest conflicts ever seen by mankind, the First and the Second World War, the rise of extreme ideologies, the Cold War, and finally a unification process that caused many citizens of European states to assume new identities as Europeans. This course will focus on the theory and practice of propaganda during the 12 years of the Third Reich. The course is divided into two main parts, which address (1) the historical developments in Nazi Germany until the outbreak of the War, 1933-1939; and (2) the Second World War and the destruction of European Jewry, 1939-1945.&nbsp;
37314	P 160D	001 LEC	MW 1130-1P	282 DWINELLE	Multicultural Germany	4	GOKTURK, D	NONE
Note: This course will deal with the culture and politics of minorities in contemporary Germany. We will discuss how ethnic identities are perceived, constructed, and marketed. We also engage critically with such concepts as migration, assimilation, citizenship, diaspora, hybridity, and authenticity, as well as rhetorical strategies of "speaking back." We will focus on exemplary texts and films from Germany, but include comparisons with minority experiences in other countries.&nbsp;
37317	P 175B	001 SEM	TuTh 930-11A	321 HAVILAND	20th-Century Poetry	3	KUDSZUS, W G	7
Note: In this seminar, we will engage in in-depth readings of prime examples of 20th century lyric poetry in German, including works by Georg Trakl, Hugo von Hofmannsthal, Rainer Maria Rilke, Stefan George, Else Lasker-Schueler, Gottfried Benn, Ingeborg Bachmann, Johannes Bobrowski, Rose Auslaender, Paul Celan, Nelly Sachs, Rolf Dieter Brinkmann, Ernst Herbeck, Ernst Jandl, Friederike Mayroecker, and Durs Gruenbein. Language, madness, boundary issues, questions regarding translation, and poetological statements will be among our interests. Open to undergraduate and graduate students. Among our readings will be Gaston Bachelard, "The Poetics of Space."&nbsp;

37903	P 101	001 LEC	MTWTF 11-12P	108 WHEELER (effective 09/03/15)	Elementary Yiddish	5	INGALLS, J C	NONE
Note: This is an introduction to Yiddish language, literature, and culture. With particular focus on the basics of Yiddish grammar, we will develop reading, writing, speaking, and comprehension skills. In so doing, we will also have an opportunity to explore simple Yiddish songs, stories, and dialogues as reflections of Yiddish culture and history. Also: CHAVER, Y
37906	P 103	001 LEC	TuTh 11-1230P	102 BARROWS	Readings in Yiddish	3	CHAVER, Y	NONE
Note: "The Feminine Voice: 20th-Century Women's Yiddish Poetry". In traditional Jewish Culture, women were usually barred from the "masculine" fields of learning and literary activity. The spread of modern secular culture gave women an opportunity for self-realization. We will explore the transgressiveness, deceptive traditionalism and high modernism of poets such as Anna Margolin, Miriam Ulinover, Dvoyre Fogel, Rikuda Potash, and others. Readings are in Yiddish; secondary sources are in English. Prerequisite: Yiddish 101 and 102, or equivalent knowledge.&nbsp;

Note: The more than 3 billion mobile phone subscribers worldwide far outnumber PC users; however, there have been very few successful third-party applications. In this course, you'll learn why developers have yet to realize the full potential of the mobile application market. Through a team competition-based format, students will work in simulated cross-discipline, lean start-up teams vying to create innovative products. The final outcome will be a working prototype and "white paper." You'll learn, first hand, the technological and marketing challenges that make mobile applications difficult to commercialize and how to overcome them.

Note: "Building Smart Cities Leveraging Open Innovation" - In this course, students are expected to develop a smart city proposal for each of the three cities - the Gift City in Gujarat being the fourth and control case. Students are expected to engage with City officials and mayor's office to carry out their projects. The scope and type of the smart city projects will be determined by the needs of the community that is currently residing or planning to attract. The city mayors/governors are expected to judge the final presentations during their field visit to India in January 2016.

Note: "Poverty and Social Policy" - This course is designed to provide a comparative overview of how poverty is addressed in the United States and in rich European member countries of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). In this class we will examine values, assumptions, definitions and theories that shape the understanding and measurement of poverty. We will consider explanations for the persistence of poverty and review relevant research on proposed causal factors. We will look at how theory and research have guided the design of anti-poverty policy and will analyze policies for their impact on poverty alleviation. nbsp;

Note: "Social Innovator On Ramp" - This course guides students in jump-starting their own projects for social impact. Students learn theory, best practices and get outside expert perspectives, and apply these lessons to their own social initiatives. Students must apply to the course with a brief summary of their project or idea, and are encouraged to enroll in teams of two or more. All ideas that are driven by a mission of social good, local or global, are welcome. Application and more information is at tinyurl.com/BerkeleyOnRamp . nbsp;

Note: "Latin American Development" - Course examines Latin American development from the 19th century to the present. We will evaluate the explanations offered for the region's classification as "underdeveloped" or "developing" and then use a case study/country approach to critique those explanations. Major themes include dependency theory and commodity chain analysis, industrial and agrarian developments, labor militancy and indigenous politics. A main purpose of this course is to provide context for students seeking to understand contemporary issues and challenges confronting the region and its citizens. No prior knowledge of the region is required. nbsp;

Note: "Global Security Risks" - Security risks are the uncertain effects of malicious activities (including sabotage, espionage, war, insurgency, and terrorism). Students will learn how to manage security risks from their root causes. For instance, students will learn not only how to defend against political violence but also how to co-opt political spoilers. Students will learn how to control risks like political instability, maritime piracy, and improvised explosives. Students will learn from lectures and practical exercises in class, a turn-based simulation, and written responses to topical risk assessment and management challenges.&nbsp;

Note: "Globalization of India" - This course uses the analytic of globalization and an interdisciplinary approach to provide an overview of contemporary India, focusing mainly, though not exclusively, on urban India. Students will be introduced to the debates surrounding colonial modernity, as an earlier globalizing era, this serving as background for considering contemporary India. Topics covered include: the Indian middle class, urban life, Hindu nationalism and other social movements, the postcolonial public, expressive culture, the changing nature and role of casts. No background on India is required.&nbsp;

Note: "Commodities, Trade and Global Labor Regimes" - From silver to cocaine, sugar and tobacco, to cotton, oil and electronics, the nature of work has been shaped by expanding global demand for products whose origins - whether in the soil or the factory - remain mysterious. This course will explore the worlds of production and consumption and ask how global demand for specific commodities has shaped local, national and global politics. We will examine legal and illegal products, the cultural context in which products are made and acquire value, and the tangled relationship between production, ownership, labor discipline and human rights.&nbsp;

Note: This course will explore the representation of the body and gender in Yiddish literature, particularly engaging with questions of race, dis/ability, and spirituality. Literature will span both religious and secular texts, from medieval memoir to 20th Century experimental poetry. Using gender theory as a lens into the world of Yiddish writing, we will encounter medieval women troubadours and healers, spirit possession, and avant-garde performance. Familiarity with Yiddish is not required. All literature will be in English translation. Also: BRINNER, B E

Note: "Arendt, Benjamin, and Scholem on Modern Chaos" - This course will focus on the writings of three major figures in 20th-century thought whose works are still considered crucial points of departure for contemporary debates in the fields of political and ethical philosophy; literary-cultural history, theory, and criticism; and religious-mystical traditions and their relation to modern historical analysis.

Note: "A Jewish and Democratic State" - The course will review the central arguments on the meaning, possibility, and legitimacy of a "Jewish and Democratic State," as Israel is defined in its constitutional documents. We will engage the central debates that have emanated from this constitutional duality, with a focus on their legal incarnations: the design of governing bodies and processes, the status and rights of the Arab minority, the Law of Return and immigration policy, land use and territory, the place of religion in the public sphere, and the future of Israeli constitutional design.

Note: "Public Health & Innovation in the Middle East" - Health and innovation are two pillars of social and economic order. What are the major challenges, who can address them successfully, and how? Integrating real-life case studies, this course considers such questions within the context of regional poverty and prosperity, political economy, war, peace and revolution, human rights, and general international relations. Course will be relevant to those looking to pursue careers in a range of sectors, including academia, international institutions, government, public health, business, and international development.

Note: "The Kurds: History, Culture, Politics" - This course will cover Kurdish history from the Ottoman period through the rise of modern states, and their attitudes toward minority ethnic communities. Special attention will be paid to Kurdish identity formation, nationalism and current political demands, as well as relations with neighbors throughout the Middle East, particularly in Iraq, Iran, Turkey, and Syria. It will also consider Kurdish languages and culture, especially music, in context.

Note: "Evolution: Creatures, Not Creation" - Molecular biology and recombinant DNA technology permit us to sequence the genomes of diverse organisms, from bacteria to humans. Genome sequences confirm that all organisms are related at the genetic and biochemical level in the ways predicted by Darwin's theory of evolution, which was based, at the time, on only the fossil record and field observations of extant populations. This course will discuss this knowledge and other cumulative evidence that now firmly establishes the Law of Evolution. This course should be taken for a letter grade. nbsp;

Note: "Matter, Mind, Consciousness" - Everything we know comes to us via our consciousness. The connection between the physical processes of our brain and body and the subjective qualities of our mind and consciousness is considered by some to be the most profound question science can address. We will approach this mind-body question from the perspectives of biology, philosophy, physics, and psychology--cognitive science, broadly defined. The seminar will meet at The Berk residence, just north of campus at 2311 Le Conte (corner of Hearst and Arch). nbsp;

Note: SATISFIES READING AND COMPOSITION REQUIREMENT; "History and Philosophy of the Sciences in the Pre-modern Middle East" - From ancient Babylonia to the pre-modern Middle East, scholars of the region produced an abundance of texts deciphering the workings of the worlds that they inhabited. Cuneiform tablets and Arabic manuscripts preserve a vast range of subjects from astronomy to alchemy, which interfaced scientific learning with philosophical and social interests. Writing assignments will respond to primary texts in translation, supplemented by modern studies in the history and philosophy of science, in order to explore the course's central question: What sort of knowledge is scientific knowledge? Note: This course explores the phenomenon of Sufism in the Islamic tradition. Topics include Sufi foundations, the sources upon which it is based, ritual practices, themes, and doctrines developed during its formative period and its eventual systemization. The course investigates the lives of several key Sufi figures including, As-Sadiq (d.765), Rabia (d. 801), al-Junayd (d. 910), al-Hujwiri (d. 1077), al-Ghazali (d. 1111), Ibn al-Arabi (d. 1240) and Rumi (d. 1273) among others. Also covered are central Sufi concepts as annihilation (fana), love (mahabba), knowledge ('ilm), gnosis (ma'rifa), intellect ('aql), reality (haqiqah), and unity (tawhid).&nbsp;

The course will carefully focus on archaeological sites recently damaged in Iraq and Syria; as well as, issues of looting, black market trade in antiquities, forgeries, cultural colonialization, and the eternal question, "to whom does the past belong"?
61644	P 190C	001 LEC	TuTh 330-5P	189 DWINELLE	Jewish Studies	4	DUARTE DE OLIVEIRA	20
Note: Trailing Berkeley's long tradition of understanding the "other," this course pursues the search for one of the civilizations that deeply marked and inspired Western civilization. The Jewish tradition, one of the cornerstones of Europe and the New World, belongs to a group of ancient cultures originated in the Fertile Crescent, which throughout time was crystallized in evolving oral and written references, around which were condensed and preserved fundamental moments of the relation between God and humanity. This course will examine thoughts of Jewish authors who dedicated themselves to the study of their tradition in a particularly creative mode.

Note: "The European Union and International Stability" - This course focuses on the development of the European Union and on its role in ensuring regional and international stability. We first explore the history of European integration and the motivations driving the establishment of the European polity to overcome conflicts between European states. We then explore the EU "soft" foreign policy in 3 arenas: enlargement in core areas of Europe; stabilization in neighborhood areas (Northern Africa, Eastern Europe, Middle East) through promotion of democracy and development; engagement in the rest of the world through bilateral and interregional cooperation.&nbsp;
66736	P 119	003 LEC	TuTh 2-330P	123 WHEELER	Special Topics in Peace and Conflict Issues	4	OGATA, T	5
Note: "Prevention of Genocide and Mass Atrocities" - The course examines episodes of genocide and mass atrocities in the 20th and 21st centuries and analyzes theoretical, legal, political, and sociocultural underpinnings of genocide prevention. Today we see a growing body of scholarship, early warning and risk assessments, legal doctrines and practices, the responsibility to protect debate, and state and non-state institutions devoted to preventing genocide and mass atrocities. Through integrating these resources, we will deepen our understanding of "genocidal" processes and explore ways to prevent them.&nbsp;

Note: "Navigating Cultures: Learning to Live and Work Around the Globe in the 21st Century." The course explores the nature of culture and its impact on perception, behavior and conflict resolution. Students learn to assess their own cultural values and to understand cultural meanings that escape those who hear what they're used to hearing and see what they're used to seeing. With case studies from Asia, Africa, Europe, the Middle East and the Americas, we will analyze different cultural approaches to time, emotion, individualism, collectivism, power, decision making, verbal and non-verbal communication. A major research paper will replace the final exam.&nbsp;

71203	P 24	001 SEM	Tu 4-5P	203 WHEELER	Freshman Seminar	1: PF	KARRAS, A L	NONE	FR
									Note: "Political Economy in Contemporary Perspective" - This seminar will require students to engage with current events, international and domestic, through the lens of political economy. Those who are enrolled will be required to read The New York Times and/or The Economist each week, identify issues of political economy that are being discussed, and present them to their peers for discussion. Differing perspectives on the news, as well as the different ways in which political economy theorists would interact with the events, will be discussed. Students should expect vigorous engagement and critical thinking.

Note: "Russia and Europe Since 1848: From the Making of the Soviet Union to the Crisis of the European Union" - The identities of Russia and Europe have emerged in conflict and conversation with each other. Encounters and exchanges on the frontier between them gave expression to the utopian dreams, dystopian fears, and interpretive languages of the modern world. From the Revolutions of 1848 and the Crimean War to the ongoing crises in Greece and Ukraine, this course invites students to think comparatively about the development of the two most powerful multinational political and economic unions of the last hundred years, Soviet and European.&nbsp;nbsp;

Note: "Sociohistorical Scandinavian Linguistics" - Taught in English with readings in English. This course is a special look at the history of Scandinavia not through its people and nations, but through its languages. Join us as we examine the earliest evidence of the written word in Scandinavia in ancient runic inscriptions, look at the evidence we have for what was happening even earlier thanks to linguistic reconstruction, and then journey into more recent centuries to look at e.g. the Norwegian language struggle, the position of Sami, and the interesting interactions between Finnish and Swedish in eastern Scandinavia.

Note: Juniors or seniors who wish to enroll in a directed group study must first complete an Approval Form for Enrollment in Supervised Independent Study Courses, available during Phase I of Tele-BEARS in the Slavic Department at 6303 Dwinelle Hall. The instructor's signature (and, for Slavic majors, an advisor's signature) are required for all independent study courses. The Department Chair's signature is required for final approval of group studies for both majors and non-majors. A course control number to allow enrollment will be issued by the Undergraduate Student Services Advisor once all signatures have been obtained.
